Program Presented At Pomona Meeting
More than 250 people attended the inter-county meeting of Columbiana and Mahoning county Pomona granges at the North Lima grange last Saturday night.

Rev. Ray H. Klingaman, pastor of the St. Jacob's Reformed church of Lisbon, spoke during the meeting on Dr. Toyohiko Kagawa, Japanese Christian evangelist, while members of the Mahoning county Pomona grange had charge of the entertainment.

It was decided to send a representative of the two granges to Columbus to hear Dr. Kagawa speak and a committee was also appointed to see if it would be possible to secure the Japanese evangelist for an address at Mt. Union college within the near future.

The next meeting of the granges will be held May 23.

Million Dollar Deb To Wed

Seven others overcame by smoke were taken to a hospital. M. T. Smith, hotel manager, said ten others might be trapped in their rooms.

The two dead were unidentified. All available fire apparatus was called into service as the fire, which started in the center of the third floor of the downtown building, gained headway.

Niles Sends Help
Additional equipment was rushed down from nearby Niles. The dead, a man and a woman, both middle-aged, were killed when they fell or leaped from the third floor windows as dense smoke poured from their rooms.

Noonday crowds saw the pair, dressed in night clothing, lean over window ledges. The woman screamed and her body crashed to the street, followed immediately by that of the man.

As the blaze progressed, firemen warned thousands of spectators against the danger of falling walls. Fire Chief E. H. Oldacre later ordered the east wall of the building pulled down to facilitate fighting the fire.

Two of the rescued, taken to St. Joseph's hospital, were Philip Beaudray, 43, suffering from face and arm burns, and Blaine W. Polson, 48, overcome by smoke. Neither gave a home address.

Both said they did not know the cause of the blaze. Beaudray told hospital attendants he was in a room on the second floor of the building. He said he fled down a fire escape, receiving burns in reaching a window leading to the fire escape.

Leaps 30 Feet to Safety
Polson said he occupied a third floor room from which he leaped a ledge 30 feet below at the rear of the hotel. He climbed down a fire escape to the ground, he said.

Others taken to Warren City hospital were Mrs. Smith, wife of the manager, whose condition was described as serious; Basil Louer and two men, named Welness and O'Day, all of whom were said to be in favorable condition.

The hospital was not immediately able to announce the nature of their burns or other injuries.

WARREN, March 2—Two persons plunged to their deaths today and the fate of possibly ten others was unknown as fire of undetermined origin raged in the three-story Warren hotel, erected nearly 40 years ago.

The two dead were unidentified. All available fire apparatus was called into service as the fire, which started in the center of the third floor of the downtown building, gained headway.

ITALIANS AT GENEVA MEET

Fascists Seeking to Prevent Application of League Sanctions

By CHARLES E. HARNER.
Associated Press Foreign Staff.
Fascist soldiers had driven a spearhead deep into the body of Ethiopia today and Fascist diplomats, in Geneva, sought to supplement Italy's armed successes with a victory at the conference table.

Specifically, they sought to prevent the application of more sanctions against Italy by the League of Nations.

A spokesman for the little entente of Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Roumania said he was informed the domestic situation in Italy was serious from an economic standpoint and that he believes Premier Mussolini soon would be willing to negotiate for peace in Ethiopia.

Report Ethiopian Losses
A possible additional incentive to such negotiations was seen in the fact of Marshal Pietro Badoglio's northern columns which smashed through the resistance of the Ethiopian armies in the Tembien sector and at the rocky redoubt of Amba Alaji with a reported loss of 10,000 men in the Ethiopian forces.

An Associated Press war correspondent estimated that only 5,000 Ethiopians were left in the Tembien sector, surrounded in Abbi Addi, a village 25 miles west of Makale.

Observers were of the opinion that these sweeping Italian gains may have satisfied Premier Mussolini's desires for conquest in Ethiopia, in which case the Geneva report that he was nearing a willingness to negotiate would be substantiated.

Toledo Area Shaken By Air Tank Blast

TOLEDO, March 2.—A huge compressed air tank in the Logan Gear Co. plant exploded early today, 15 minutes before the force reported for work, shaking houses throughout the west end of the city.

Patrol Plans Traffic Checks

Salem state highway patrolmen today issued a warning to motorists in Salem and vicinity to be sure the lights and brakes of their automobiles are in working order.

Insufficient lights and defective brakes cause far too many accidents, the officers said.

The warning was issued today ahead of a series of traffic checks which the patrolmen plan to conduct on surrounding highways as warmer weather arrives.

Two traffic checks were held by the patrolmen over the weekend, one on Route 7 near Boardman on Saturday and another on Sunday on Route 14 near Edinburg.

In both inspections the majority of the defects included lights and brakes.

A total of 1,000 cars were inspected, including about 100 trucks. Correction orders were issued to about 300, the officers reported. Four motorists were arrested in the Route 14 survey.

Another motorist arrested by the state patrolmen Sunday was H. C. Segesman of Detroit, formerly of Salem, who was fined $5 and costs by Justice of the Peace William Rich, Jr., on a charge of reckless driving. George Wahring of R. D. 1, Canfield, was fined $3 and costs by Justice of the Peace Bowers at New Albany on a charge of failure to obtain a bill of sale.

Alaskan Beauty, 27, Found by Aviator, May Enter Contest

(By Associated Press)
FAIRBANKS, Alaska, March 2.—A beauty contest threatened today to interrupt pretty Alice Joyce's hazardous dog team trek across the icy Alaskan wastelands.

Anxiety over the safety of 27-year-old "musher" was dispelled by Joe Crosson, famed "mercy flier" of the north. He sighted her near Tanana Crossing, end of the "danger zone" of her adventure.

Immediately sponsors of the Fairbanks ice carnival considered sending an airplane to pick her up from the dog trail, bring her here for the Queen of Alaska beauty contest Thursday, then fly her back so she can resume the 1,000-mile dog team trip from Taku to Fairbanks.

Miss Joyce, making the dangerous overland trip "just for the fun of it," was expected at Tanana today. She left Taku Dec. 20.

For nearly a week she and her native guide, Jimmy Allen, were overdue at Telling.

Here Miss Joyce was to represent Taku in a beauty contest which brought entries from towns throughout Alaska.

George Brandani, 30, of 1433 South Morgan st., Alliance, caught his right arm in machinery at the Salem Coal Co. mine just east of the city on the Washingtonville road shortly before 10 a. m. today.

His arm was mangled so badly that it had to be amputated at Salem City hospital. His condition is only fair.

Physicians Easily Find Brain Tumors

DETROIT, Mich., March 2.—Physicians can now locate tumors of the brain quickly and easily by having a patient smell the odors of coffee and lemons.

This new use of the sense of smell to locate growths which formerly have been difficult to find was reported today to the annual meeting of the American College of Physicians by Dr. Charles A. Elsberg, of Columbia university, New York city.

By carefully injecting these odors into the patient's nostrils while the breath is held, Dr. Elsberg declared it is possible to tell from the amount of air given, the length of time it takes for the patient to recognize the odor it carries, and the particular nostril into which it is injected, just where the tumor is growing.

Electrical Power Flow Cut Off For More Than Four Hours

SWITCHES RUINED AS BLAZE RAGES

Factory power off; Homes, Stores Resort to Candles, Lamps

An exploding auxiliary transformer which set fire to the main oil switches and other equipment at the South Ellsworth ave., sub station of the Ohio Edison Co., shut off all electric current from the city for four hours and 20 minutes, beginning at 3:40 p. m. Sunday.

The electrical blaze, besides destroying equipment, set fire to a portion of the building itself and brought injuries to three persons.

The Injured

L. A. Carlson of Youngstown, burns to the left side of his face and injuries to his left foot.

George Beda of Youngstown, injuries to the back of his head and neck.

Walter Staudmeister of R. D. 4, Salem, injuries to his feet.

None of the three were hurt seriously. They were given treatment at the Central Clinic.

Carlson and Beda were members of a crew of sub station electricians who were engaged in making changes on equipment preparatory to increasing its capacity for heavier loads.

They had practically completed their work when the auxiliary transformer, described by electricians as a transformer for phasing out the current, let go.

The flash of flame set fire to nearby oil switches and other equipment, spreading rapidly for the moment.

Staudmeister, sub station operator, who was directly in the path of flame, jumped from the platform in front of the switchboard to the floor of the building. He escaped the flames but received injuries to his feet.

The electrical workers immediately battled the fire with chemicals, at the same time cutting off the current coming into the station from the high tension lines. Water was then brought into play and the blaze extinguished. A window in the front of the building was destroyed.

The oil switches which were destroyed by the fire controlled the output of current to the city, including both commercial and industrial users.

Several factories were forced to suspend operations temporarily as a result of the loss of power, although the effect on industrial operations was not as great as it would have been had the blaze occurred on a week day.

NOT WHETHER, BUT WHEN

Long ago Europeans ceased asking themselves whether there would be another general outbreak of war and started inquiring when it would happen. Last week the British government furnished a tentative answer.

Ever since the end of the World war, British preparedness policy has included an assumption that war always was not less than 10 years in the future, a reminder that statesmen never really took seriously the ideology of permanent peace. That assumption has been abandoned.

From what is known of the British rearmament program, it may be deduced that the government expects some kind of a crisis within four years. Perhaps that is because the far extremity of a four-year period is just far enough away to be indistinguishable. Great Britain, feeling certain there will be war, has placed the time of the outbreak at the place where the curtain falls between the present and the future.

Four years, in other words, would be a sufficient time for nations now preparing for war to finish their preparations, and it is interesting to remember that Britain's preparations are a cause as well as a result of Europe's fatalistic expectation of martial disaster. There must be more alliances arranged, more armament accumulated, more defenses established, more cannon fodder trained. Most important of all, there must be more credit established. To the ordinary observer of European preparations it still remains a mystery how any war can be fought without a fat boy to finance it. The United States filled the role during the World war. Who is being prepared to fill it the next time?

ALL IS CONFUSION

President Roosevelt deserves the congressional medal for being a jolly good fellow. He has risked his own political fortune to give the boys at the other end of the avenue an even chance.

Obviously, it didn't require special presidential insight to notice that the only safe thing for the government to do is start talking about new taxes. Any congressman with sense enough to draw his pay knows that, though there are some exceptions. But congressmen would rather have their tongues cut out than to seem to be in favor of plastering the public with taxes in an election year. If there were some way to gouge the revenue out of the millionaires or even the upper middle class, it wouldn't be so bad. But what every congressman knows is that the taxes from now on are going to bluster down where the votes are—down among the small earners.

So congressmen didn't want to talk about taxes. That is, they didn't want to open the subject. If Mr. Roosevelt cared to bring it up first, that would be much—oh ever so much—better. He could do it and get away with it. His prestige could stand it. In fact, he could do himself some good by showing an interest in covering up some of the red ink in the budget.

Apparently, Mr. Roosevelt had no objections. He has opened the subject. He has mentioned figures which bring out cold perspiration on the chafed backs of the beasts of burden who are going to have to pay for the bird baths and bridle paths of the balmily boondoggling era. He has given the boys at the other end of the avenue a chance to throw up their hands in horror. He has taken the bull by the horns and all is confusion. When the confusion clears after a few days Mr. Roosevelt will be discovered holding the bull by the tail while congressmen shout advice from the other side of the fence. He has earned all the medals at the disposal of congress.

According to the lunar and mutual aspects of this day, there may be peculiar, mysterious or intriguing situations to be encountered. NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, March 2—Diary: Betimes and hung the rosy-cheeked kid picture Grace Drayton made for me before crossing the border, placing it between originals by Peter Arno and Clare Briggs. So at my mail and a note from Christie MacDonald and a pow-wow with my tax accountant, David Adlerblum.

Roscoe Peacock, in town from North Cohocton, dropped by and gave a droll imitation of a town medicine seller hawking his Ojibway Pain Killer. And Jeffrey Roche, Arthur's boy, in a minute, too. So out with my lady and put in to see Steve and Buff Cobb Brody and the youngsters.

The Lisle Bells to dinner and Lisle told of some James Thurber school day antics in Columbus, O., and then driving along the docks, passing sleepers wrapped in newspapers. Then to call on Mrs. Sime Silverman and the Edward G. Robinsons and Regina Crewe had just left.

Chinatown's underground wickedness geysered into the headlines recently as a result of a vice crusade that jalled the "Mott Street Mob." The jostling area of crooked streets is still honeycombed with sunken hideaways that even the police often cannot find. There are trap doors of the dime novel, innocent-looking shops that lead to rabbit-like warrens and a system of warnings that make it the most confusing district in the metropolis to escape the law.

Ginger Rogers was another cinema Cinderella to come back to New York, where she once lived in theatrical boarding houses, three flights up and all the way back, and queen it in an elaborate Waldorf suite with a secretary, French maid and caparisoned flunkies at the outer door. Ten years ago, too, Miss Rogers was a ginghamed, freckled redhead swinging on the garden gate in front of an unpretentious cottage in a jay town in Texas. One of the small-time troupers so frequently fictionalized by Vina Delmar. Then that skyrocketing success that litters metropolitan hotel lobbies with autograph seekers.

Cheer section: A huzzah for the only director the Metropolitan ever had to give American singers a real break—Edward Johnson.

More than one theatrical producer is beagling for a play in which to star Gloria Swanson in a mother role. Her love for children has long been an outstanding emotion in real life, although she never had the opportunity of so expressing herself on the screen. Her devotion to her own children, along with that to a boy she adopted, has been one of the Hollywood sagas. Those who know say she has a neat sense of values for the spoken drama—but the problem has been to find a play that may give an outlet for a long hidden talent.

The call to the South Seas is being heeded by the majority of those "tired of it all and longing to get away from the mad whirl" more insistently than ever. Fifteen Greenwich Villagers departed in a month. Somerset Maugham touched off the hegira to tropical isles with his novels, and this tug was made tauter by the novelization and filming of "Mutiny on the Bounty," and the serial "The Hurricane." The result in Tahiti has been the usual one. Prices have become prohibitive for those seeking lower living and established expatriates have pulled up stakes. New-comers stand for the gyping until the next boat shoves off. Hotel rooms that once rented for 10 francs, about 50 cents a day, are now $5 a day.

Bagatelles: Lee Shubert was the first man in New York to wear white edging on his vest. . . . There are no red-breasted robins in America, despite the poets and songsters. . . . Tony Canzoneri has sailed $250,000 in annuities. . . . Lily Pons' last name is pronounced "pones." . . . Ben Ames Williams is one of the favorite American writers in Wales. . . . Col. Lindbergh was cabled by a weekly magazine to name his own figure for an article "Why I Left America." . . . No answer. . . . Sherman Billingsly is reputedly the wealthiest night club owner with a million.

One of those bar girls, the sort if you don't see in one place you will in another, was nuzzling a big goateed whiff of brandy and looking hopefully at the thin trickle of night stragglers. Finally she gave her man a yank, hopped off the stool with a shrug and yawned: "The home town paper said—'She's going to New York where she can give wider expression to her talents!' " and went out!

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

ACNE

ACNE is an annoying skin disorder. It is a painless affliction but leads to a great deal of mental discomfort and embarrassment. In most instances the disorder is encountered in young persons who are naturally anxious to have clear skin and glowing complexion.

these become infected and filled with pus.

How can acne be prevented? This is the question uppermost in the minds of these young sufferers. It is comforting that acne can be prevented and also that it can be cured but this is possible only by rigid attention to diet, hygiene and the observance of correct health habits.

Between the ages of 12 and 30 years the internal glands are exceedingly active. Even the glands of the skin work vigorously. These glands have ducts or passageways opening into the skin. They are liable to become blocked, inflamed and infected.

Keep Skin Clean

For this reason it is absolutely necessary that every effort should be made to keep the skin clean and healthy. Daily bathing, regular elimination, regular hours of sleep, and plenty of fresh air and sunshine are necessary if one is to have a healthy skin. In addition, all centers of infection, such as infected teeth, nasal sinuses, adenoids and tonsils must be given attention.

Proper diet is essential to the prevention and cure of acne. The use of starches and sugars must be limited. Avoid all fried and greasy foods, excessive use of salt, peppers, spices, pickles and other condiments.

Too often the sufferer resorts to the use of salves, ointments and other "remedies." These are of little or no value. They are worthless if the diet is neglected and the skin not cared for as it should be.

In a severe case where the acne persists despite diet and hygienic care, beneficial results are sometimes obtained by the administration of a vaccine. As a rule this vaccine is most successful if made direct from a pustule or sore containing pus. Your doctor will advise you about this.

The lamp treatment, or x-ray, is advised in certain cases. But under no circumstances should either of these be used unless it is advised and directed by a reputable physician.

Answers to Health Queries

F. W. C. J.—I am 20 years of age, sleep and eat well, do not drink or smoke, yet I am extremely nervous and self-conscious. I think most of my trouble is mental. What would you advise?

A—Nervousness and self-consciousness are very apt to accompany each other. Make every effort to improve your general condition. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Dr. Copeland is glad to answer inquiries from readers who send addressed stamped envelopes with their questions. Address all letters to Dr. Copeland in care of this newspaper at its main office in this city.

The confidence mother has always had in S.S.S. Tonic... which is still her stand-by when she feels run-down... convinced me I ought to try this Treatment... "HIGH SCHOOL TRAGEDY"

by MAXINE MCANTY

CHAPTER XXIX

Allen's jaw set; he looked at me quickly. Then he answered: "He made her terribly unhappy. He was selfish and untrue to her. Bruce Lloyd deserves punishment for that reason."

"He meant it, too. I think he would have seen Bruce Lloyd hang, whether he was guilty or not, and that it was just. Allen was just normal, that's all; he was just a normal."

Neither the folks nor the newspapers mentioned Melvin that night; of course, I didn't bring the subject up. But I rose before the papers and ran down to the front porch to get the Sunday papers the next morning. On the front page of the Courier was Melvin's picture, taken in one of those cheap galleries probably. A light hat was perched on the side of his head, and he was smiling a crooked, sneering smile. He looked at the time, no doubt, that he looked tough. Beside him were the two men I had seen handcuffed the day before. Their photographs were of the police variety, taken full face. They were not physically so bad looking but their expressions made them crafty, ruthless.

The headline said: "HIGH SCHOOL YOUTH IN CUSTODY." Under that was: "Melvin Wright picked up With Gang Pals Yesterday." This was followed by the story, part of which I'll quote:

Melvin Wright, local high school student, questioned in connection with the Sinclair murder mystery, was picked up again yesterday by Detectives Atwater and Smith at a pool hall on the South Side. In company with "Slim" Ricardo and Mike Zdeb, both are known to police. Ricardo was once convicted of stealing an automobile and served a term at San Quentin. Zdeb has no prison record.

The men deny any knowledge of the crime or any connection with the Wright boy. They state that he was known to them because he frequented the pool hall, admit that they had once or twice given him liquor, and that he has taken the sister of Ricardo to local dance halls.

On the other hand, the youth, under severe questioning, separated from the other men, told a different story. He alleges that he knows the men well, that he has been on "drinking parties" with them, and that they have talked to him about their "business." It has not been revealed to the press what the nature of this "business" is.

So Melvin had broken at last! I read on eagerly through all the "alleges" and "it is said" that dot such a story. It looked to me as if Melvin had "spilled the beans." I wondered if one of those racketeers had egged him on to kill Connie? What would happen to him then? Would he hang, at his age?

The San Francisco paper played up a more sensational angle of the testimony Melvin gave, namely that one of these men had given him the gun which the police had found. He admitted that the three of them had planned to hold up a dance hall on the outskirts of St. Joseph on Wednesday night. Melvin was to take Ricardo's girl there, with the gun concealed safely in his pocket. Ricardo gave him the gun Wednesday afternoon, instead of Thursday as he had first said.

But on Wednesday, Miss Sinclair spoiled their plans. She refused to sign the boy's parole. The men were furious, for they had depended on Melvin to get into the dance hall manager's office where he could hold up the manager himself while the girl opened the door for the other two to make the robbery. Now that the kid knew the plans, they felt (so the police seemed to think) that he had to be in on it in order to insure his silence. They advised him to see Connie.

He went to her apartment Wednesday night, but she was out. So on Thursday he returned. He felt desperate about it because the men were pushing him to get it settled. He admired these ruffians exceedingly; he wanted to be one of them. More than that, he was probably afraid of them.

Connie had disrupted their plans, for with the parole unsigned, Melvin might be held by the probation officers and "squeal," or he might be watched. Either one of these possibilities was dangerous for them. They postponed their holdup until Saturday, the next big box-office night at the dance place. They impressed the necessity on Melvin of getting that parole signed by Friday. So he had gone to Miss Sinclair's at eight that night, Thursday. He admitted that he was high-strung and desperate, that he had come to hate her, that he demanded she sign the paper, and that they quarrelled violently when she refused.

Asked what he did after leaving her at eight-thirty, he told of meeting Ricardo and Zdeb, of their abusing him and reviling him for his failure, of his drinking with them and trying to plead his case with them. After that he insisted that he could remember nothing more until the next morning.

Thus Melvin took the spotlight from them all. His motive for killing her was strengthened 100 per cent by this story. A boy, anxious to please his gangster heroes, thwarted by a woman who had gained his hatred anyway, fortified by bad liquor, fearful of his friends, armed with a gun, might most conceivably have returned to her apartment within the hour and committed the crime.

Today was a dark one for Melvin Wright.

There was one spot in Melvin's story that was interesting from any point of view. While the authorities had been so busy tracing the activities of each of the suspects involved before and after the murder, no one had thought of finding out what Connie herself was doing before that Thursday night. From Melvin's tale, the fact came out that when he went to see her Wednesday night, she was out. The logical question everyone asked now was: Where was she?

So Wednesday and its events had to be reconstructed. The papers didn't do a complete job of it as they didn't know about Allen. Of course, I did; so I pieced out a fairly complete record. Bruce, accompanied by Bernice Carter, tried to telephone her at the high school. Failing to reach her, he then sent the yellow roses.

We know that those yellow roses had a special meaning for her when she returned home that afternoon about four o'clock and found them waiting for her. She must have been tempted first to throw them away, as I think any girl would have done. But some sentimental thought or some faint glimmer of hope interfered. She unpacked them and put them in the vase on her table where Dicky and I had seen them.

In spite of the hope she must have still retained, she was exceedingly sad. It was in tears that Allen found her when he called around four-thirty. Her appearance naturally stirred my brother's pity and, feeling as he did about her, aroused some protective instinct. He demanded to know what the trouble was that had made his heroine unhappy. I suppose, knowing boys, that he hoped it was some awful dragon that he could go out and slay, thus earning the right to be "happy ever after."

(I wonder if Dicky would ever feel that way about me? I should say not! At his age, a girl a year or so younger is never so mysterious and appealing as one eight or ten years older! Why, I have never been able to fathom.)

But to return to Allen: Instead of accepting him as a hero, Connie looked at him as just an impatient high school kid with whom she had been too patient. Immersed in her own sorrows, she told him he was presumptuous and ordered him to leave.

When Melvin called between seven-thirty and eight, she had gone. No one in St. Joseph could be found who remembered seeing her. But in San Francisco, an officer went to Bruce Lloyd's hotel on Geary st. This is occupied by young bachelors mostly. The night clerk believed that it was October 19th that a woman called to ask for Lloyd. Mr. Lloyd, he said, had been out of town for several days. He had not called for his mail. He did not know where he could be found.

The woman was disappointed, hesitated, asked for stationery, and wrote a note which she left for Bruce. The officer asked the clerk to describe the girl.

Sketch Causes Robber's Arrest

Theater Attractions

Tonight and tomorrow the State offers "Wife Versus Secretary," a new film which is showing here ahead of many large cities. Clark Gable, Myrna Loy and Jean Harlow portray the husband, the wife and the secretary, respectively in this story by Faith Baldwin.

Gable is cast as Van Sanford, a business man, very much in love with his wife, Linda, played by Myrna Loy. Jean Harlow as Whitney, the secretary, is the "other woman." The secretary is considered perfect, in complete charge of her employer's affairs.

Different Viewpoint
Linda, his wife, visits the office and while Van sees Whitney only as an efficient secretary Linda sees her as a woman. She is not jealous but a series of incidents convince her that it would be well if Whitney were out of the office. Then gossip starts and before she knows it Linda finds herself believing all of it.

The Grand features a double bill tonight, a mystery and a home-spun yarn from the novel of Kate Douglas Wiggin.

Ricardo Cortez, Mary Astor and John Eldredge play in the mystery yarn, "The Murder of Dr. Harrison." The plot is based on a story by Mignon Eberhart and revolves about the attempt of several persons to obtain the formula for a priceless anaesthetic, which has been stolen from them by the grasping head of a drug company. Then follows the disappearance of the drug magnate and the murder of a surgeon.

"Timothy's Quest," with Eleanor Whitney, Tom Keene, Dickie Moore and Virginia Weidler, from the famous novel, tells the story of an ideal romance between Miss Whitney and Keene, which nearly goes on the rocks. However, it is patched up by the two children, Dickie Moore and Virginia Weidler.

JOLIET, Ill., March 2.—Warden Joseph Ragen of the state prison disclosed today guards had found a razor similar in type to the one used by James Day in the killing Jan. 28 of Richard Loeb, 1924 "thrill" slayer of Bobby Franks of Chicago.

The razor was concealed in a mattress in the cell of T. McCarthy, committed from Chicago to serve 10 years to life for robbery. It was one of several that disappeared from the prison barber shop two years ago. McCarthy was placed in solitary confinement.

He refused to say where he obtained his razor.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

By Wanda Barton

QUIETLY, BUT none the less efficiently, clocks are undergoing a metamorphosis. Like everything else of utility, the watch has become interestingly beautiful as well.

The old-fashioned mantel clock is fast becoming a museum piece for it is so rarely seen, as is the clock that ticked away under a glass case. Even if you are a collector, it will be worth your while to look at the new clock offerings, and note how reasonably they are priced. The chances are that you won't be able to resist treating yourself to at least one model.

Do you remember way back when that old alarm clock was thought quite good enough to serve as the kitchen clock? Well, now that the kitchen has become such a handsome and scientifically-equipped workshop, there must be a clock to match. The electric clock has made place in the kitchen and the new models are trim as can be. The new model is square and is made of enamel with a black and green red enamel rim around the dial, which has large, readable figures.

Kitchen Help
The new kitchen clocks generally have a second hand, so that there can be no more excuse for not removing that dish from the fire in time.

In striking contrast to the utilitarian kitchen clock are those lovely little clocks that look more like ornaments than anything else. A disc of mirror glass in deep blue stars in silver to mark the hours and stands on a blue mirror glass and silver base.

Another timepiece is a long, narrow affair, and is made of silver and crystal, on a black base. This clock can well afford to have a very narrow face, for there are no minutes marked there. Instead, the minutes and hours are printed on moving tape that glides along the small oblong opening that serves as a face. So now, with a clock like this, the youngsters don't even have to learn how to tell the time anymore. A clock like this would be beautiful on a smart writing desk, on a dressing table or small, occasional table, for it is a real ornament.

Other Clocks
Another good desk clock is small and efficient. It is made of a solid piece of wood, either mahogany, rosewood, maple or walnut, less than four inches square. Round dots in contrasting wood mark the hours, and this clock also has a second hand. It is the sort of thing that, although very new and novel, would fit into any room.

We liked it as a bedside clock, almost as much as the new popular twin-face clock, the clock that enables either occupant of two beds to see at a glance what hour of day it is.

Another extremely modern clock is a round disc covered with natural cork and markers of chromium. Red markers and figures of chromium or blue lend interest to another disc clock made of exotic woods. Mirror glass makes another handsome clock. This comes in deep red or blue with touches of silver and black.

WE HOPE that you have taken our exhortations to heart and are at last considering a window garden. And the garden doesn't have to be in a window box outside the window. No, it can do very nicely right inside on a nice window sill. So you can still do nice things for those Christmas poinsettias that give you such joy in their vivid, red beauty, such sorrow that so much loveliness must soon wither and so be no more. Give the poinsettia plants good care until the last leaf withers.

Get a couple of flat dishes, baking dishes are best. These may be painted to match the woodwork and then they should be filled with pebbles and then with water. The tins should be about three or three and a half inches deep. Now, take your pots of poinsettias and place them on this stony and watery bed. Then when there isn't anything to remind you that the pot ever contained poinsettias, put it in the cellar, with an occasional watering to help things along.

When spring comes along, repot the plant and forget about it again, after placing it in the ground. Prune it in late summer and bring it into the house in early autumn. You will most likely find that the poinsettia will repay this attention by masses of its lovely blossoms.

But let's get back to our regular window sill garden box, which we hope will be treated to a nice south exposure. If you love color, then you will be happy with a window filled with glowing geraniums or begonias. Then there are the hyacinths in all their glorious hues, plus their lovely but somewhat heady perfume.

Or what about celebrating the return of spring with a bath of tulips? With the bulbs planted in their pots and the pots placed in the window box, the rest, with proper care, should be smooth sailing and lots of fun.

As you can readily see, this kind of gardening is just about the easiest in the world. You even can try your hand with gardenias. They should be almost dry before being watered, but they should never be allowed to be soaked too much. If you prefer the odd to the exotic, then you should be interested in members of the cactus classification of which there are many. Many of these bear most beautiful and original blossoms. Then there are all sorts of vine plants, some of which, too, have beautiful blossoms.

If you have a sentimental regard for ivy, as so many of us have, why not plant some in a pot and place the pot in your window box. The same goes for other evergreen plants. If you are potting plants yourself, use the richest loam you can get, first putting stones at the base of the pot, for drainage purposes.

THE OHIO BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY

OUR READERS

TO THE WORKERS

Editor, The News:—With the breakdown that occurred at the local sub-station of the Ohio Edison yesterday, our thoughts were turned toward "the workers" and of how very dependent we are upon the efforts of others.

When we found we were going to be without electricity for several hours, we began to scurry around and see where we had stored the old oil lamps and whether we happened to have any gas mantles or candles we could use. This was more or less fun for us, but all this time the toilers were bending their efforts toward repairing the damage at the plant so you and I could have service as usual.

Until such a thing happens to us we cannot fully realize how very dependent we are on others. Perhaps during the cold spell, when we found our pipes frozen, we were inclined to get peeved because the men from the water department

The harassed Emperor Haile Selassie was personally trying to consolidate Ethiopia's defenses in the north, a Djibouti, French Somaliland, source stated.

He was said to have left Dessie Feb. 20 to inspect his defenses south of the Tembien area and to confer with his military leaders. Official French sources in Paris further substantiated the statement that Premier Mussolini was willing to talk of peace at last.

However, other Parisian sources said the French government was "undecided" as to whether this indication on the part of Il Duce was a real desire for peace or "the beginning of a diplomatic offensive."

Such an "offensive" would include activities against the extension of sanctions. The British government, fearful that the Italo-Ethiopian war repercussions would spread to include the British empire in the strife, prepared to make public its program for rearmament and increased national defenses.

A "white paper" announcing the complete program is expected to be issued tomorrow.

did not come to us first; how we get fussed when "central" does not answer at once when we take the receiver down, or if the postman fails to come just when we are looking for a letter. We are apt to complain when the milkman forgets us or does not arrive on time.

We think the "fire ladders" have a snap of it, but we forget how willing they are to risk their lives when our lives or property are at stake. How could we get along without them?

We read in the papers of what a wonderful man such-and-such a man is because he has been successful in climbing to the top of his organization. He is entitled to credit for his ability and leadership but he would have been powerless if he had not had the support of the vast number of "workers" with whom he had worked. They, too, should share in his accomplishments.

We feel we should return our thanks to "the workers" for their efforts and we hope in the future we will be a little more patient with them in their efforts for our comfort.

No organization can get along without "the workers" as we all depend on each other to get along. We hope the time will come when each individual can share in the profits of the organization of which he is a part, whether he be laborer, mechanic, foreman or stockholder.

We believe such a plan will go far toward curing many of our economic ills. It is being worked in places now. It is much more practical than the "Townsend plan," "accord" to our way of thinking.

We are going to try more than ever to appreciate the labors of all who contribute to our comfort and wish in this way to express our hearty thanks for their efforts. Let us remember that "the workers" are our brothers, and that we are, in a measure, responsible for their lives.

Europe, Asia Seethe With War Talk Threatening Peace of World

With the ratification by the French Senate of a new treaty with Soviet Russia and with aggressive army elements seeking to control Japan's foreign policy, general warfare again threatens the peace of the world and may break out in either the Far East or in Europe. Observers point out possible return to the alliances in force prior to the World War, with Italy, Germany and Austria forming a Central European alliance against France, Russia and Great Britain. The latter has announced speeding up of armament plans. Maps show the affected areas with photos of some of the planes in the immense French air fleet (left), guns of the British battleship Rodney (right), Germany's newly-trained army (below), and a section of the Russian army (top), reputedly the largest in the world.

Smedley Butler

When Major General Johnson Hagood was recently relieved of his command for criticizing the WPA while testifying before a congressional committee, it was not the first time he had broken into the headlines for his outspoken habits. He has never been one to repress his opinions because of diplomatic considerations. When repeal legislation set the limit of 2.75 per cent for non-alcoholic beverages, he termed it "mere bellywash". He flayed the "red tape" and "buck passing" of army methods during a previous federal investigation in 1932. His removal from command places him in select circle with Smedley Butler, retired marine corps commander, and the late William Mitchell, former army air chief, both of whom clashed with higher ups because of their outspoken remarks.

Although Admiral Robert Peary is credited with having been first to reach the pole, Cook contends that he made the discovery a year before, in 1908, and has asked Roland Redmond, president of the American Geographic society, to consider the case at the next meeting of the council in April. He explained that he sought vindication "before I die".

17 Teams Bid For Honors In Sectional Cage Tournament

Salem High Quakers To Play Youngstown South In First Game

Tournament Will Open With Four Contests Tomorrow Night; South-Salem, Chaney-East Palestine Are Headliners

As the basketball world blazes toward its peak through-out all sections of Ohio, 17 teams, including the Salem High school Quakers, will make their bids for honors in the Youngstown sectional Class A tournament at Youngstown East High gym this week.

The tourney opens with four contests tomorrow night and will continue every night of the week with the championship game scheduled for Saturday. The two teams which reach the finals and the winner of the consolation game will represent the Youngstown section in the Northeastern Ohio district tournament at either Akron or Kent State university.

Assured of a capacity crowd, the opening night of the tourney promises more than its share of excitement. Two of tomorrow night's contests, Salem-Youngstown South and Youngstown Chaney-East Palestine, will be of major importance in deciding the tournament winner and present indications point to their being the best of the five nights of competition.

Chaney, Youngstown city champion, and East Palestine, titleholder of the Tri-County league, meet at 7 p. m. in the initial contest of the tourney while South and Salem battle at 9 p. m.

Other Games
The other games tomorrow night will send Newton Falls against Lisbon at 8 and Hubbard against Girard at 9.

Ray Reasbeck of Salem and Mason Colough of Youngstown will officiate during the tourney, with Jack McPhee of Ellwood City, Pa., as alternate.

There's no use beating about the bush and disguising the facts when it comes to figuring Salem's chances against South. The Quakers are without a doubt the "underdog." South, victor in nine of its 10 games this season, is at the present time one of the tourney favorites. Coached by Davey Williams, South's players are taller than any of the Quakers have met to date. Jack Mills, leading scorer, towers around the six-foot three-inch mark, Bob Baer is six feet two inches, and the other three members of the varsity quintet are all above five feet 10 inches.

Pivot Star
The lanky Mills is South's center and pivot star, while the equally elongated Baer holds down a guard berth. Mills is the outstanding threat of Coach Williams' quintet. Baer is of considerable value under the basket, because of his height, but is said to be a poor floor-man. "Swede" Holstrom, an expert on shots from the side of the court, and Roger Gustafson are the South forwards while Cortezale, a Spanish lad who is an aggressive, quick-acting and thinking type of player, is the running-mate at guard for Baer.

In order to curb South's advantage in height as much as possible, Coach Herb Brown indicated today that he will assign Clay Raynes to cover Baer and use Max Lutsch in guarding Mills. Raynes and Lutsch, both touching the six-foot mark in height, are the tallest of the Quaker basketballers.

Youngstown Chaney, who plays all of its games on foreign courts, will be the favorite over East Palestine's Bulldogs. Although one of the most up-and-down teams in the district during the regular season, Chaney is always a dangerous quintet in the tournament.

Additional Edge
Additional edge goes to Chaney because of its familiarity with the East High floor.

East Palestine has won 10 of its 12 games to date and, regardless of whether it is given any consideration as a possible tournament winner, will no doubt make things interesting for Chaney. The Bulldogs' leading threat is Switzer, six-foot two-inch center, who has outplayed most of his opponents this season.

Chaney forms its attacks around Terlicki, Kauffman and Brusko. Lisbon is not conceded a possible chance in its contest with Newton Falls. The Columbiana county seat cagers have won but two games this season. Newton Falls has shown improvement in its final games of the regular campaign and will probably move at top speed during the tourney, although it is not expected to go far.

Girard and Hubbard will be meeting for the second time in their tourney game with the former quintet as the favorite to win. Neither team has an impressive record. In the previous contest Hubbard gained a 21 to 18 victory.

Roger Gustafson

Here's three reasons why Youngstown South is the favorite among many fans to win the sectional Class A basketball tournament at Youngstown East High school this week.

Jack Mills, six-foot three-inch center, is South's leading scorer and ace of the pivot position. Mills averaged 9.3 points in 10 games this season. Bob Baer, another rangy lad who measures 6'2" feet two inches, holds down a guard berth and, although not exceptional as a floor-man, is good at ringing up scores from under the basket. Roger Gustafson, flashy forward, is an expert on long shots and the speediest cager on the team.

South plays the Salem High school Quakers at 9 p. m. tomorrow in one of the tournament's four opening contests.

HOOSIERS MEET BUCKEYE QUINT

Seek Their Share of The Big Ten Basketball Championship

CHICAGO, March 2.—Indiana will reach for a share of the Western conference basketball championship tonight.

The Hoosiers will close their most successful season since 1928, against Ohio State at Bloomington. Anyone who doesn't think the Hoosiers will be primed to the hilt for the effort hasn't much of an idea of how seriously basketball is taken in Indiana. Indiana, which has suffered numerous disappointments in Big Ten basketball, not only wants its share of the title, but will be seeking revenge.

Lose to Ohio State
Ohio State periled Hoosier hopes defeat of the conference season. Feb. 15, by handing Indiana its only defeat of the conference season. Only a timely upset triumph over Purdue by Northwestern hauled Indiana back into a contending position.

Purdue's Boiler-makers, who will claim the other half of the championship unless something goes wrong, will play their final game Saturday night with Michigan at Ann Arbor. The Boiler-makers had quite a time getting around the Wolverines at Lafayette early in the campaign.

Indiana, with Ken Gunning scoring 19 points, played its best Saturday night to conquer Northwestern 41 to 34, while Purdue was rolling over Iowa, 54 to 38. Bob Kessler scored 22 points as the Boiler-makers returned to form after losing to Northwestern a week ago and turning in an unimpressive performance against Minnesota, Monday.

Names Umpire

COLUMBUS, March 2.—President George M. Trautman of the American association announced the appointment yesterday of E. J. Bor-ski of Moline, Ill., as the association's eighth umpire and said that Tommy Connolly, umpire-in-chief of the American league, had been assigned to the association's umpires' camp at Lake Wales, Fla., to help round the league's umpires into shape.

Card Have Problem
On the other hand, there's the situation at St. Louis where illness has forced Bill Delaney out of the Cardinals lineup and Dizzy Dean has declared he won't work with Virgil Davis. Brusie Odrogowski, rated as the best catcher in the American association when Columbus last year, may be the solution to this problem.

Ernie Lombardi's failure to come to terms with the Reds has put most of the catching burden upon Gilly Campbell during Cincinnati's training jaunt to Puerto Rico. Ernie may have trouble getting his job back if he changes his mind about signing, as expected, when the Reds reach the mainland.

One of the brightest catching prospects in the senior league is seen at Brooklyn where big Gordon Phelps has stepped into the place vacated by Al Lopez and begun hitting so hard that Casey Stengel has tentatively nominated him as the cleftup batter.

Ohioans Vie In Trapshoot Meet

KANSAS CITY, March 2.—The Interstate trapshooting tournament, in which several Ohioans are participating, will end here tomorrow. Yesterday's scores include:

Uncle Bob Elliott memorial flyer handicap (25 targets): Joe Hiestand, Hillsboro, O., 32 yards, 23 targets; Lou House, Toledo, 29 yards; 23; William Eldred, Cincinnati, 32 yards, 21.

Two hundred handicap event: Joe Hiestand, 24 yards, 181; Lou House, 18 yards, 179.

H. L. Creek of Clinton, Ind., won the Elliott event with a perfect score, while Henry Davis of Agency, Mo., was high in the 200-handicap with 192.

Cooper Is Winner Of Florida Event

BELLEAIR, Fla., March 2.—Harry Cooper of Chicago owned first prize money of $7,000 in the Florida West Coast open golf tournament today as the result of a good beginning.

Chipping five strokes off par in two rounds Saturday and standing four up on the field at the halfway point, Cooper had enough edge to withstand the closing spurts of Leonard Dodson, Pembroke, Wis., and Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa.

Only Cooper with 282 and Dodson a stroke behind, managed to beat par as the strain of 72 holes in two days took its toll on the rest of the field.

Lowellville Wins Mahoning Tourney

YOUNGSTOWN, March 2.—Paul Johnson's Lowellville High cagers captured the Mahoning county class "B" tournament championship for the fourth consecutive year Saturday night, defeating Greenford 32-16 before 1,200 fans in the finals at Boardman High gym. It also marked the third straight season Greenford has succumbed to Lowellville in the titular fray.

Lowellville, Greenford and North Jackson will represent Mahoning county in the McDonald tournament starting Tuesday.

North Jackson, one of the dark horse entries, came through with a 39-33 decision over Fitch to bag the consolation crown. The Jack-sonites disposed of Canfield 33-27 and Fitch spanked Poland 30-25 in the afternoon semi-finals.

Harness Racing Officials Meet

DAYTON, March 2.—Ohio and Michigan harness meets will offer approximately $75,000 in purses to officers of the Ohio-Michigan racing circuit said today as they set about the task of reconciling conflicting bids for the opening dates.

The season will run for nine weeks, starting June 15, Guy A. Reeder, newly elected president, said. Reeder succeeds A. Butterfield of Flint, Mich. The trotting executives met here yesterday and elected B. A. Milliken of Youngstown vice president, and Edwin Keller of Cincinnati secretary and treasurer.

Speakers besides Reeder included Mrs. D. A. Detrick, Bellefontaine, secretary of the Union Trotters' association and the Ohio Fair Managers' association.

Training Camp Slants

By The Associated Press
PENSACOLA, Fla.—Dick Bartell, one of the latest arrivals in the Giants camp, showed up with 17 extra pounds which he had gained during the winter. He said he was going to try to keep at least half of it and redeem himself for his form reversal in the second half of last year's race.

Yankees Start Training
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—Joe McCarthy of the Yankees took the field with an even two dozen athletes today to inaugurate the 12th training season for Colonel Jacob Ruppert's athletes at Huggins field.

Stengel 'Burned Up'
CLEARWATER, Fla.—Casey Stengel is "burned up" over the statement of Joe Stripp who said it "wasn't his fault" if he played in only 109 games last year and was "mishandled" by the Brooklyn Dodger pilot says Joe can purchase his release for $10,000 if he wants it.

Plans to Fill Vacant Positions
PASADENA—Jimmy Dykes of the White Sox is making plans to fill the holes in his team in the event Zeke Bonura and Luke Appling persist as holdouts and he plans to play first himself, with Joe Morrissey at short and possibly Mike Kreevick at third.

Grimm Views Pitchers
AVALON—Charlie Grimm of the Cubs is busy sorting out pitchers to back up his starters. The latter include Warneke, Carleton, Lee, French and Root. Among the most promising newcomers are John Huthings and Gene Ford.

Rookie Pitchers Look Good
BRADENTOWN, Fla.—Three Rookie pitchers looked good in the pinches in the Cardinals first inter-squad game of the season yesterday. Bill McGee, Tom Sunkel and Marvin Quante pulled out of some bad situations as both squads went runless.

Reds Split Into Two Squads
SAN JUAN—The Reds split up today, the regulars going to Santo Domingo for games Tuesday and Wednesday and the Rookies remaining here under Coaches Sheehan and George Kelly.

Indians Hold Infield Practice
NEW ORLEANS—The Indians were all set for infield practice today with the expected arrival of second basemen Lou Berger and Roy Hughes.

Looking Over Rookies
LAKELAND, Fla.—Manager Cochrane is spending his time looking over the large Rookie crop called by the Tigers this year. Although a four inning training game is up for tomorrow, heavy practice will not get underway until March 8, when fielders are due.

Gives Training Orders
WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—The Browns know the work-out has started. Rogers Hornsby hit town yesterday and ordered his squad up at 8 a. m. today and on the field at 10:30.

Miles Clinches Right For Senators
ORLANDO, Fla.—Dee Miles appears to have clinched the right field job with the Senators. Holdout Pitcher Jack Russell has come across with his contract at $6,500 which is under last year's figure.

COUNTY LEAGUE MAY INCREASE TO TEN TEAMS

Adding of Two Teams Is Favored At Loop's First Meeting

Favoring an increase in the size of the league, representatives from eight teams gathered at the City hall in Lisbon yesterday for the first 1936 meeting of the Columbiana county baseball loop.

The league, which will go into its second campaign this year, consisted of eight teams last year. The new set-up, discussed at the meeting, would call for two additional teams to be added to the circuit.

The eight teams represented at the meeting, Salem, East Liverpool, Lake Placencia, Lisbon, Wellsville, Salineville, East Palestine and Sebring, were all members of the league last season. Lisbon is the defending champion of the loop.

Officers Elected
Tom Cartwright of Salineville was reelected president of the league at the meeting, while other officers elected at the same time were: Vice president, Bill Watkins of East Liverpool; secretary, Joe Dickey of Newell, W. Va.; chairman of the board of arbitration, Larry Mailey of Sebring.

A discussion of baseball in the various leagues of Pennsylvania was given the meeting by a Pittsburgh representative of the National Conference baseball league.

The next meeting of the league will be held at the city hall in Lisbon at 2:30 p. m. March 14.

James Reaney, manager of the Salem Merchants team, presented the local nine at the meeting yesterday.

BOWLING NEWS

The Salem News keggers broke even in matches over the week-end when they handed Cuyahoga Falls a 2,410 to 2,338 trimming Saturday night and were topped by the Beaver Falls News-Tribune bowlers, 2,952 to 2,675, Sunday.

Jim Jackson turned in the high single game of 203 and the high three game total of 541 during The News' Saturday night match at the Masonic Temple alleys.

In the match Sunday at Alliance, the Beaver Falls team combined games of 996, 945, and 1,011 to hand The News bowlers one of the worst defeats they have suffered this year. Three of the Beaver Falls keggers were over the 600 mark in three game totals. Ewing, lead-off man, had a 615, Vollmer a 625 and Grimm a 615.

The Salem Mason five lost out to Cuyahoga Falls Masons, 2,682 to 2,652, in another match at the Masonic Temple alleys Saturday night. Bill Finley led the Salem team with a three game score of 588. A 212 by Kramer of Cuyahoga Falls was the high single game rolled during the match.

3 CHURCHES TO COOPERATE FOR SPORTS EVENTS

Recreation Program Arranged for Memorial Building

Volleyball, basketball, ping-pong and checkers will hold sway at Memorial building tomorrow when the men and boys from Methodist, Presbyterian and Christian churches unite for a recreation program.

Held for the purpose of creating closer fellowship between the men and boys of the three churches, the recreation program will be the first of its kind ever staged in Salem.

The pastors of the three churches, Rev. Herbert Thompson, Rev. Raymond Walter and Rev. C. P. Evans, cooperated in arranging the program.

Volleyball First Event
Volleyball teams from each of the churches will compete in the event of the program at 7 p. m. while following these games, the Class C and two Class B city league basketball teams, representing the churches, will participate in basketball contests.

The ping-pong and checker tournaments will continue throughout the program with each church represented by its strongest player.

Besides the recreation program, the scout troops of the churches will give an exhibition on different phases of scouting.

Colors have been assigned to the various churches by the committee in charge of the program. Teams and players representing the Methodist church will wear red, Christian, white, and Presbyterian, blue. A public address system will be installed for the event and refreshments will be served.

Bob Kauffman, diminutive forward, collected 14 points to lead the Chaney scoring parade.

Texas Opens Gala Centennial Party With Cry of Alamo

(By Associated Press)
AUSTIN, Tex., March 2.—The Texas battle cry of freedom—Remember the Alamo!—echoed across the biggest state today, opening a $15,000,000 centennial birthday party for the Lone Star.

One hundred years ago today a small group gathered at Washington-on-the-Brazos and signed the declaration of independence from Mexico—a ceremony that led Texans through the bloody siege of the Alamo and the battle of San Jacinto to Texas independence and eventually to the United States.

Today the yellowed "charter of empire" was taken from its secure place in the state capitol rotunda here and sent back to Washington-on-the-Brazos, a village of 250. A special detail of the state's famed rangers guarded the document.

With it went Gov. James V. Allred of Texas and Gov. Philip LaFollette of Wisconsin to formally open the year-long centennial celebration.

Today's celebration launched a state-wide series of observances which will reach a climax at Dallas June 6 with the opening of the centennial exposition.

BIG SHIPPING YEAR FORECAST

Iron Ore, Coal and Other Interests See Busy Season Ahead

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, March 2.—Iron ore, coal and shipping interests are preparing for one of the busiest seasons on the Great Lakes since 1930. A survey of executives and experts in these trades, who declined the use of their names, disclosed a unanimity of opinion that 1936 will be much better than last year. They were in general concurrence on these comparisons:
Coal shipments, because of a severe winter, will be between 37,500,000 and 40,000,000 net tons, compared with about 35,000,000 tons in each of the last two years and the top figure of more than 39,000,000 tons in 1929.
Ore shipments, which last year were 28,289,000 gross tons, will increase to about 35,000,000 to 40,000,000 gross tons, or possibly more, the highest since 1930, when they totaled about 47,000,000 tons.
The number of bulk freighters in service will increase proportionately, as coal and ore are the largest shipping factors.
Whether the heavy ice conditions of January and February will mean a later opening of navigation, with a consequent shortening of the season, depends on weather yet to come. Should the season be shortened, more boats would be called into service.
Coast experts say that by the opening of navigation, distribution centers on the upper lakes will be scraping the bottom of the bin for domestic sizes and may have only a small amount of steam sizes left.
Ore men say that by May 1 ore stock on lower lake and furnace piles will be reduced to about 19,000 tons. At the same time last year stocks were 24,816,000 tons.
Several sources estimate the number of ore carriers will be increased one-fourth to one-third over last year.
More Coal Shipments Seen
Lake navigation opened last year on April 16. There is always the possibility the ice will delay it until May, and severe winters have been known to hold up shipping on the upper lakes until June.
Extreme cold, and to some degree heavier commercial needs, have created a demand which is likely to raise coal shipments to a new high this season, sources in the coal trade say.
A major shipping company handling ore and coal, one reliable source indicated, has tentative plans for giving every licensed officer in its fleet some kind of an officer's berth this year. Last year many of them had to take lesser assignments, because of slack lake traffic.

Here and There About Town

Oratory Blasts Headlight
Because he was in a hurry when another motorist, C. R. Warde of New Alexandria, Pa., momentarily blocked his way while backing into a parking place, the first motorist lost his temper. It cost him the price of a headlight, though.
Police, who failed to obtain the hot-tempered motorist's name, reported he got out of his car and started to argue with Warde—hammering his fist, oratorical style, on the headlight of Warde's car.
There was a crash of glass as the headlight lens fell to the pavement.

THREE INJURED AT SUB STATION

Transformer Blast Cuts Off City Power for Four Hours

night. In others there was a scurry for candles, oil lamps, lanterns or whatever else there might be available to provide illumination of a temporary nature. State street presented an eerie appearance, with the dark forms of the buildings jutting into the semi-moonlight night, candles gleaming from windows here and there; auto headlights raking up and down the thoroughfare; and pedestrians feeling their way about in the gloom.
Patrolmen stationed themselves at important street intersections to aid traffic.
A heavy burden was thrown on the telephone office as hundreds of calls were received, everyone wanting to know "what's wrong?" The exchange immediately put into use a "standby" electrical producing unit which kept operations going and, in the meantime, accepted and answered calls for the Ohio Edison company which had all available main power on the job.

Power From Canfield
The electricians hooked up a rural line between Canfield and Salem whereby the City hospital and a few homes in the east end of the city were supplied with current. Ordinarily, the Salem sub station sends current north on this line for the rural communities, while Canfield feeds into this district from the north. The wires lacked the capacity to handle a heavier load.
In the meantime, electricians toiled over the switches and other equipment at the substation and at 8 p. m., electricity flowed through the city again after "jumpers" had been set across the damaged switches and the lines cut through.
Ohio Edison officials today were unable to provide an accurate estimate on the loss, explaining, however, that replacements will run into many hundreds of dollars.
It was impossible, they said, to determine definitely what caused the transformer to let go, pointing out that such occurrences, while not common, may happen at any time.
